The xray problem solvers

JANUARY 2006
EDITION

Happy New Year!

It's about relationships!

It doesn't seem possible that 2005 has come and gone. I guess the older I get, the faster the years seem to pass. 2006 will mark the 20th year of business for Richardson Imaging, and the 33rd year of being in the x-ray business for Dan & me.

This time of year also makes me pause and think about what's really important. The Christmas season just naturally seems to bring us all closer to each other, and often strengthens and renews our relationships with friends and family. When it's all said and done, good relationships are what it's all about.

All of us here at Richardson Imaging Services value the relationship we have with each of you. It is more than a job. It is a partnership that we share with each of you, personally. As we move into a new year, it is my prayer that our relationships will grow even stronger. We will continue to strive to be more than an x-ray service and sales organization, but also, your trusted friends in the x-ray business.

Thanks for your continued support and don't forget to visit us at our website www.risxray.com. Put a face with a name on our staff page and feel free to give us your feedback as to what you would like to see on our site. There is a "Contact Us" button on the menu where your comments or requests can be made. We apologize to anyone who has tried to contact us earlier and received no reply. We had an error in our "Contact Us" address and unfortunately never received your information. Our thanks to our customer whom alerted us to that fact!

Looking forward to a great New Year!
